

Michael Widener, II – Student # A0000041559
The University of Silicon Valley
Course: ENT525 – Legal Structures, Contracts, and IP
Trimester 1 / Week 7 Submission

Assignment Part 2A

Michael Widener's Glows – Reflection

This course has helped me connect real-life challenges I've faced with the legal and strategic frameworks used in business innovation. I appreciated how the assignments allowed for both structured legal reasoning and creative expression, especially when exploring intellectual property law and AI. The pacing felt manageable, and I was able to draw meaningful connections between the course material and my own efforts to build ethical digital platforms. I also appreciated the clarity of the case studies and readings, which gave me a strong foundation to examine the complexities of attribution, authorship, and creative ownership in today's AI-driven economy. This blend of personal relevance and academic challenge made the course rewarding.